Renate Hendrixx (2003) is studying with great enthusiasm at the Breda University of Applied Sciences (BUAS). She is enrolled in the Built Environment program, within which she has chosen the specialization 'Urban Design'. She is a truly social creative individual and has a strong interest in the functioning of cities. Her ambition is to make the world a little better as an urban designer, for people and society.

In addition to her studies, she interned for the past six months at Ziegler | Branderhorst, a design firm for Urban Design and Architecture in Rotterdam, where she had the opportunity to further develop herself by working on complex issues within the spatial domain. There, she learned to create solution-oriented plans with an open attitude and in collaboration with other parties. These six educational months led Renate to pursue further studies at the Academy of Architecture - Master in Urban Design, after obtaining her bachelor's degree. For this, she will start the Pre-master in Urban Design in September. Additionally, she will now contribute her creative abilities as a working student at Bloc.
